Tabling Draft for HRC 30

Human rights in the administration of justice, including juvenile justice

The Human Rights Council,

Guided by the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations,

Recalling the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and all relevant international treaties, including the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the Convention on the Rights of the Child and the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment and the Optional Protocol thereto, as well as the Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance, and encouraging all States that have not ratified or acceded to the afore-mentioned treaties to consider doing so expeditiously,

Bearing in mind the numerous other international standards and norms in the field of the administration of justice, in particular of juvenile justice, including the Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners, the United Nations Standard Minimum Rules for the Administration of Juvenile Justice (the “Beijing Rules”),¹ the Basic Principles for the Treatment of Prisoners,² the Body of Principles for the Protection of All Persons under Any Form of Detention or Imprisonment,³ the United Nations Guidelines for the Prevention of Juvenile Delinquency (the Riyadh Guidelines)⁴ and the United Nations Rules for the Protection of Juveniles Deprived of their Liberty (the Havana Rules),⁵ the Guidelines for Action on Children in the Criminal Justice System (the Vienna Guidelines)⁶ the Guidelines on Justice in Matters involving Child Victims and Witnesses of Crime,⁷ the Declaration of Basic Principles of Justice for Victims of Crime and Abuse of Power⁸, the United Nations Rules for the Treatment of Women Prisoners and Non-custodial Measures for Women Offenders (the Bangkok Rules), the Bangalore Principles of Judicial Conduct, the United Nations Standard Minimum Rules for Non-custodial Measures (the Tokyo Rules)⁹, and the United Nations Principles and Guidelines on Access to Legal Aid in Criminal Justice Systems¹⁰,

Welcoming the adoption of the revised United Nations Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners (Mandela Rules)¹¹,

Recalling all resolutions of the Human Rights Council, the Commission on Human Rights, the General Assembly and the Economic and Social Council relevant to the subject, in particular Human Rights Council resolutions 18/12 of 29 September 2011, 24/12 of 26 September 2013 and 25/6 of 27 March 2014, General Assembly resolutions 67/166 of 20 December 2012 and 69/172 of 18 December 2014, and Economic and Social Council resolution 2009/26 of 30 July 2009,

Noting with appreciation the work of all special procedures of the Human Rights Council that address human rights in the administration of justice in the discharge of their mandates,

Noting with interest the work of all human rights treaty body mechanisms on human rights in the administration of justice, in particular the adoption by the Human Rights Committee of its general comments No. 21, on the humane treatment of prisoners deprived of their liberty, No. 32, on the right to equality before courts and tribunals and to a fair trial, and No. 35, on liberty and security of persons, and noting with interest also the adoption by the Committee on the Rights of the Child of its general comments No. 10, on children's rights in juvenile justice, and No. 13, on the rights of the child to freedom from all violence,

Noting with appreciation the important work of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime, the United Nations Children's Fund, the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Violence against Children and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Children and Armed Conflict in the field of the administration of justice,

Convinced that the independence and impartiality of the judiciary and the integrity of the judicial system as well as an independent legal profession are essential prerequisites for the protection of human rights, the rule of law, good governance and democracy and for ensuring that there is no discrimination in the administration of justice and should therefore be respected in all circumstances,

Emphasizing that the right to access to justice for all, including access to legal aid, forms an important basis for strengthening the rule of law through the administration of justice,

Welcoming in this regard the inclusion of the target to promote the rule of law at the national and international levels and ensure equal access to justice for all in Sustainable Development Goal 16 of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development,

Recalling that every State should provide an effective framework in which to pursue remedies to redress human rights violations or grievances,

Recalling also that the social rehabilitation and reintegration of prisoners shall be among the essential aims of the criminal justice system, ensuring, as far as possible, that offenders are willing and able to lead a law-abiding and self-supporting life upon their return to society,

Recognizing the importance of the principle that, except for those lawful limitations that are demonstrably necessitated by the fact of incarceration, persons deprived of their liberty shall retain their non-derogable human rights and all other human rights and fundamental freedoms,

Concerned about the negative impact of overincarceration and overcrowding on the enjoyment of human rights, and acknowledging that overincarceration constitutes one of the major underlying causes of overcrowding,

Aware of the need for special vigilance with regard to the specific situation of children, juveniles and women in the administration of justice, in particular while deprived of their liberty, and their vulnerability to violence, abuse, injustice and humiliation,

Encouraging continued regional and cross-regional efforts, the sharing of best practices and the provision of technical assistance in the field of juvenile justice, welcoming in this regard the holding of the world congress on juvenile justice in Geneva from 26 to 30 January 2015 and noting with interest its final declaration,

Reaffirming that the best interests of the child must be a primary consideration in all decisions concerning deprivation of liberty and, in particular, that depriving children and juveniles of their liberty should be used only as a measure of last resort and for the shortest appropriate period of time, in particular before trial, and the need to ensure that, if they are arrested, detained or imprisoned, children should be separated from adults, to the greatest extent feasible, unless it is considered in the child's best interest not to do so,

Reaffirming also that the best interests of the child shall be an important consideration in all matters concerning the child related to sentencing of his or her parents or, where applicable, legal guardians or primary caregivers,

1. Notes with appreciation the latest report of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights submitted to the Human Rights Council on the human rights implications of overincarceration and overcrowding¹²;

2. Welcomes also the panel discussion of the Human Rights Council on the protection of the human rights of persons deprived of their liberty, held on 10 September 2014, and notes with appreciation the summary report of the Office of the High Commissioner thereon, submitted to the Council at its twenty-eighth session¹³;

3. Reaffirms the importance of the full and effective implementation of all United Nations standards on human rights in the administration of justice;

4. Calls upon States to spare no effort in providing for effective legislative, judicial, social, educative and other relevant mechanisms and procedures, as well as adequate resources, to ensure the full implementation of those standards, and invites them to take into consideration the issue of human rights in the administration of justice in the universal periodic review procedure;

¹² A/HRC/30/19

¹³ A/HRC/28/29

5. Invites States to assess their national legislation and practice in accordance with those standards, including the revised United Nations Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners (Mandela Rules);

6. Further invites Governments to include in their national development plans the administration of justice as an integral part of the development process, and to allocate adequate resources for the provision of legal aid services with a view to the promotion and protection of human rights, and invites the international community to provide an increased level of both technical and financial assistance to States and to respond favourably to their requests for capacity building, the enhancement and strengthening of institutions concerned with the administration of justice;

7. Stresses the special need for continuous national capacity-building in the field of the administration of justice, through reform of the judiciary, the police and the penal system, as well as juvenile justice reform;

8. Reaffirms that no one should be unlawfully or arbitrarily deprived of his or her liberty, and notes the principles of necessity and proportionality in this regard;

9. Calls upon States to apply individual criminal responsibility and to refrain from detaining persons based solely on their family ties with an alleged offender;

10. Also calls upon States to ensure that anyone who is deprived of his or her liberty has prompt access to a competent court with the effective power to determine the lawfulness of the detention, and to order release if the detention or imprisonment is determined not to be lawful as well as prompt access to legal counsel, in accordance with their international obligations and commitments;

11. Urges all States to consider establishing, maintaining or enhancing independent mechanisms with the mandate to monitor all places of detention, including by making unannounced visits, and have private interviews with all persons deprived of liberty without witnesses,

12. Calls upon States to ensure a proper prisoner file and data management system that allows to track the number of persons deprived of their liberty, their detention period and developments regarding the prison population;

13. Recalls the absolute prohibition of torture and cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment in international law, and calls upon States to address and prevent detention conditions of persons deprived of their liberty that amount to torture or cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment;

14. Calls upon States to investigate promptly, effectively and impartially all alleged human rights violations and abuses suffered by persons deprived of their liberty, in particular cases involving death, torture and cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment, to provide effective remedies to the victims, and to ensure that detention administrations fully cooperate with the investigating authority and preserve all evidence;

15. Encourages States to address overcrowding in detention facilities by taking effective measures, including through enhancing the availability and use of alternatives to pre-trial detention and custodial sentences, access to legal aid, mechanisms for crime prevention, early release and rehabilitation programs and the efficiency as well as the capacity of the criminal justice system and its facilities, and to make use, inter alia, of the UNODC Handbook on strategies to reduce overcrowding in prisons in this regard;

16. Calls upon States to review penal policies that can contribute to overincarceration and overcrowding, in particular regarding so called “zero-tolerance policies”, such as the application of mandatory pre-trial detention and mandatory minimum sentences especially for minor and/or non-violent crimes;

17. Urges States to endeavour to reduce pre-trial detention, which should be a measure of last resort and for as short a period as possible, by, inter alia, adopting legislative and administrative measures and policies on its preconditions, limitations, duration and alternatives and by taking measures aimed at the implementation of existing legislation, as well as by ensuring access to justice and legal advice and assistance;

18. Underscores the particular importance of providing appropriate training for prosecutorial and judicial authorities with a view to ensuring proportionate sentencing and enhancing the implementation of non-custodial measures at the pre-trial and post-conviction stage;

19. Recognizes that every child and juvenile alleged as, accused of or recognized as having infringed the law, particularly those who are deprived of their liberty, as well as child victims and witnesses of crimes, should be treated in a manner consistent with his or her rights, dignity and needs, in accordance with international law, bearing in mind relevant international standards on human rights in the administration of justice, taking into account also the age, gender, social circumstances and development needs of such children, and calls upon States parties to the Convention on the Rights of the Child to abide strictly by its principles and provisions;

20. Welcomes the United Nations Model Strategies and Practical Measures on the Elimination of Violence against Children in the Field of Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice, and urges States to consider applying them, as appropriate, in the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of laws, policies, programmes, budgets and mechanisms aimed at eliminating violence against children in the field of crime prevention and criminal justice;

21. Welcomes also the Global Programme on Violence against Children in the Field of Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice recently developed by the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime and the United Nations Children’s Fund, which is intended to promote and assist in the effective implementation of the Model Strategies and Practical Measures, and encourages Member States and other relevant stakeholders to support and to benefit from this programme;

22. Encourages States that have not yet integrated children’s issues into their overall rule of law efforts to do so, and to develop and implement a comprehensive juvenile justice policy to prevent and address juvenile delinquency as well as with a view to promoting, inter alia, the use of alternative measures, such as diversion and restorative justice, and ensuring compliance with the principle that deprivation of liberty of children should only be used as a measure of last resort, for the shortest appropriate period of time, and that such decisions must be subject to periodic review of their continuing necessity and appropriateness, as well as to avoid, wherever possible, the use of pre-trial detention for children;

23. Encourages States not to set the minimum age of criminal responsibility at too low an age level, bearing in mind the emotional, mental and intellectual maturity of the child, and, in this respect, refers to the recommendation of the Committee of the Rights of the Child to increase their lower minimum age of criminal responsibility without exception to the age of 12 years as the absolute minimum age, and to continue to increase it to a higher age level;

24. Urges States to ensure that, under their legislation and practice neither capital punishment nor life imprisonment are imposed for offences committed by persons under 18 years of age;

25. Calls upon States to consider establishing or strengthening existing independent and child-friendly national monitoring and complaints mechanisms to contribute to safeguarding the rights of children deprived of their liberty;

26. Welcomes the invitation to the Secretary-General to commission an in-depth global study on children deprived of liberty by the General Assembly, to be presented at its seventy-second session,¹⁴

27. Invites States to provide for human rights training on the administration of justice and juvenile justice, including anti-racist, multicultural and gender-sensitive and child rights training, for all judges, lawyers, prosecutors, social workers, immigration, correction officers and police officers and other professionals working in the field of administration of justice;

28. Further invites States, upon their request, to benefit from technical advice and assistance provided by the relevant United Nations agencies and programmes, in order to strengthen national capacities and infrastructures in the field of the administration of justice, including in addressing overcrowding, overincarceration and violence against children in the field of crime prevention and criminal justice;

29. Calls upon relevant special procedures of the Human Rights Council to give special attention to questions relating to the effective protection of human rights in the administration of justice, including juvenile justice and the human rights of persons deprived of their liberty, and with regard to the causes and effects of overincarceration and overcrowding, and to provide, wherever appropriate, specific recommendations in this regard, including proposals for advisory services and technical assistance measures;

30. Further calls upon the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to reinforce advisory services and technical assistance relating to national capacity-building in the field of the administration of justice, in particular juvenile justice;

31. Requests the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to submit to the Human Rights Council at its thirty-sixth session a report on non-discrimination and the protection of persons with increased vulnerability in the administration of justice, in particular in situations of deprivation of liberty and with regard to the causes and effects of overincarceration and overcrowding, drawing on the experience of United Nations and regional human rights mechanisms, seeking the views of States, including on their policies and best practices, civil society, and other relevant stakeholders;

32. Decides to continue its consideration of this issue under the same agenda item in accordance with its annual programme of work.
